ADR CHAT 2017

Lessons from the Cricketers' Pay Dispute – Negotiating Commercial Agreements in the Spotlight

ADR chat is an opportunity for ADR Practitioners at the NSW Bar to get together in an informal social environment, with the bonus that at each function a topical ADR issue will be discussed in a lighthearted way.

In our September ADR Chat, Robert Angyal SC will be chatting with John J Whelan, adviser to the Australian Cricketers' Association for the recent Memorandum of Understanding negotiations with Cricket Australia.

Robert has a commercial and equity practice and has been mediating since 1991. He recently posted to Huffington Post Australia on the lessons to be learned from this negotiation.

Before coming to the Bar in 2016, John was a senior advisor to two Prime Ministers as well as Chief of Staff to a Commonwealth Attorney-General and Minister for Justice and Director in the former Roads and Traffic Authority. He is also a nationally accredited mediator and has been mediating since 2013.

The cost is $30 per head payable in cash at the door, and will include 2 drinks (wine/beer/soft drink or mineral water) and assorted canapés. No warranty is given that your cricketing skills will be improved.

Attendees are entitled to claim 1 point towards continuing professional education for the purposes of mediator
accreditation or reaccreditation.
