Abstract: The NSW Sheriff's Office is Australia's oldest law enforcement agency and has been a vital part of the state's justice system for 200 years. Sheriff Tracey Hall PSM will reflect on the important existing and legacy relationship between the Sheriff's Office, the legal and justice system and the communities we serve. The presentation will include:

- an exclusive exhibit of historical photos, artifacts and stories from courthouses around the state
- a screening of the NSW Sheriff's Office 'Road to the Future' documentary, a historical recount of our role in NSW, told through the vibrant stories of our people and exclusive archival footage and images.

Bio: Sheriff Hall is a former police officer, a trained lawyer and public servant with a 42-year career in law enforcement. Tracey Hall PSM is the first permanent female in the role of Sheriff of NSW.
